Dear Josef,

thank you for your joint paper with Bhaduri and your consent to publish it on "Mondoperaio". I really enjoyed reading it. Now it has been passed on to a translator, then I will revise the translation, and we hope to publish it within about three months.

Thank you also for talking to Kaldor about Sraffa's memorial service. Sraffa felt really strongly about being a-religious, probably also because of the negative influence of the Church in Italy. But you are right that an Anglican ceremony cannot be attributed a religious meaning, in the circumstances.

Ceriani, the editor of the BNI Quarterly, would like to meet you, if possible, when you come to Rome in November. If you arrive in Rome on wednesday the 16th, it could be in the evening for dinner; or thursday for lunch, or friday for lunch or dinner, as you prefer. Also, we would need the 100-word summary of your article on "The Control of the Economy" for sending it to the Journal of Economic Literature.

I completed yesterday the translation of the oil book, and this week I should complete the writing down of the interviews on Keynes. Then I hope to have a week rest before the exams.

I look forward to see you again.

With my best wishes, Sandro
