

My argument about employees' contribution to funds is logically wrong;

the contribution's effect per calculation of disposable income in the National Account, therefore the saving rate would not be reduced by capital gains!

This will only happen in so far as households hold shares directly or via certain investment funds when they pass out capital gains dividends!
