

P. Baron p. 44

He shows the wastefulness or spendthrift habits of feudal owners; especially the waste of feudal courts etc (precursors of our bureaucracy, in some countries the two are, following one another, kind of merging imperceptibly).

The horror of the liberal critical writer in face of this waste and corruption.

Now at the present time we have close analogies with that. In fact the development of capitalism (~~but~~ for what among other) has brought back some of the features rebuffed by the earlier bourgeoisie (in form of: bureaucracy, excessive jungle-system of subsidies, industry kind of the concerns!
"Monopolies" The old type manager

The new conservative sentiment repeats